Chairman's Pen

My dear fellow exporters,

The DGFT had called for a Sectoral Review of the engineering sector. As per the DGCI&S data, engineering exports fell by 30% during April-October, 2009 though the rate of decline has fallen. On a conservative estimates, it was felt that engineering sector exports would be in the range of US$ 32.5 to US$ 33.5 billion for the year 2009-10 which implies a decline of 15 to 20% over US$ 40 billion that was achieved in 2008-09.

EEPC India also took the views of twenty-two Panel Chairpersons about the prospect of exports during the period January-March 2010. Most Panels were not very optimistic about this quarter though some Panels felt that January-March 2010 would be better than the October-December 2009 quarter.

The Panel Chiefs also provided some broad policy measures that need to be taken in the short period to help exporters stabilize their export operations. In particular, there was a suitable demand for a Technology Upgradation Scheme for various Panels. EEPC India has conveyed this to the DGFT and Department of Commerce who have said that the Technology Upgradation Fund is not within their domain but in the domain of Ministry of Industry. The DGFT has also suggested that members take the zero duty EPCG Scheme for Technology Upgradation.

Yours sincerely,

EEPC INDIA Invites Participation at Multi-Product Trade Delegation to Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore and Thailand (February 22-28, 2010)

EEPC INDIA is pleased to inform that a Multi-Product Trade Delegation will be visiting Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore and Thailand during the period February 22-28, 2010.

The Southeast Asian Region has considerable potential in enhancing trade with India, particularly, in light of the Indo-ASEAN FTA that will be implemented from January 1, 2010. India and ASEAN have more or less a balanced trade in engineering goods and the Multi Product Delegation will look to build our ties in the engineering sector. Below is given snapshots of the economic situations in the target countries.

Indonesia: the largest economy

Indonesia is Southeast Asia's largest economy and has delivered consistently high annual growth exceeding 6% in both 2007 and 2008. Growth of between 2% and 4.5% is expected in 2009. GDP per person exceeds its ASEAN neighbours such as Philippines and Indonesia, and has a GDP per person three times than that of Vietnam.

Indonesia is a thriving democracy with significant regional autonomy. It is located on the world's major trade routes and has extensive natural resources. It was the 18th largest market for Indian engineering goods in 2008-09, and 4th largest in Southeast Asia. India exported engineering goods worth USD 554.30 million in 2008-09 to Indonesia.

Malaysia: untapped potential

Malaysia emerges as one of the most potential countries in the Southeast Asian Region immediately after Singapore. It was the 6th largest destination for India's engineering exports in 2008-09. Engineering exports to Malaysia in 2008-09 was USD 1685.84 million, indicating a growth of 124.55% over 2007-08. The recent trend in the export growth of engineering products and services to Malaysia could be a focal point to capitalize on the opportunities existing over there.

For centuries, Malaysia has profited from its location at a crossroads of trade between the East and West, a tradition that carries into the 21st century. Capitalizing on its location, Malaysia has been able to transform its economy from an agriculture and mining base in the early 1970s to a high-tech competitive nation, where services and manufacturing now account for 86% of GDP.

The Malaysian economy grew 5.9% in 2006 and 6.3% in 2007. GDP growth for 2008 is estimated at 5.0% given a strong first half, but in 2009 growth forecast is around 3.5% due to the global economic downturn.

Singapore: the business hub

The economy in Singapore is based on a highly developed market that serves as main centre for business and trade in the entire Southeast Asian region. Singapore, along with Hong Kong, South Korea and Taiwan, is considered as among the Four Asian Tigers. In the world business scenario, Singapore is regarded as the most business-friendly economy. Singapore port is the busiest port in the world in terms of tonnage shipped. One can easily find the presence of all most all big names in the world of business and trade having their regional head quarters and even corporate offices in Singapore.

Singapore emerged as the 3rd most largest export destination for the Indian engineering sector in 2008-09. In 2008-09, exports of engineering goods were USD 2526.83 million, registering a growth of 69% over 2007-08.

Thailand: the fast growing neighbour

Thailand's economic growth has created opportunities for Indian companies in a number of infrastructure sectors, including electrical power, telecommunications, and renewable energy. Thai consumers are creating opportunities for new sales of medical products, security equipment and so on. Thailand is also an emerging importer of automotive accessories, defense equipment, broadcast equipment, food processing & packaging equipment, and laboratory & scientific instruments.

The newly elected government is focusing resources on the development of ongoing infrastructure projects, including the expansion of the Bangkok Skytrain and Subway systems. Indian companies engaged in these sectors will find opportunities for success.
