Bangladesh

Bangladesh is likely to set large investments from UK, Middle East and South Korea in the fields of energy, power and infrastructure. As per the Board of Investment, the investors from UK and South Korea intend to invest in energy and power sectors, especially in electricity generation units and bio-diesel production plants. Investors from the Middle East countries are keen to invest in infrastructure development projects, including transports, bridges and solid waste disposal plants. The investors have also expressed interest in bringing in new technology to convert the diesel run waterway transports like launch and steamers into compressed natural gas based ones.

Bangladesh Government has planned to set up the country's first ever petrochemical complex at Ashuganj to ensure maximum utilization of the fast depleting natural gas. Valuable contents like ethane and propane will be separated from the natural gas at the planned petrochemical complex for producing ethylene and propylene and subsequent use by companies producing plastic materials.
