Australia's economy continues to expand, marking its twelfth consecutive year of growth in 2003, and there is every indication that this trend will continue in 2004. Even after absorbing the effects of a recent farm drought and slackened world demand, the national economy is forecasted to register a GDP increase of at least three per cent in 2003 and 2004, surpassing average OECD growth rates.

(Engg. Exports from India)

Year	Value in Million US$
2001-02	63.47
2002-03	83.54
2003-04	116.06
2004-05	170.30

Despite two way trade figures between Australia and India achieving more than 300 per cent growth with a trend growth of 12.6 per cent over the last decade. It is evident from the above table that India's engineering export to Australia has shown an increase of 47 per cent over the performance during the year 2003-04.

New Zealand is an English-speaking country with a strong and stable democracy and could be an ideal destination for new exporters. Business practices are very similar to those in the US. While New Zealand's population is small, Kiwis tend to be very adaptable and eager to try new technologies. New Zealand's strong export record with Japan and its positive trend of export growth to the ASEAN community of nations also makes it an appropriate joint venture partner for value addition and re-exportation.

(Engg. Exports from India)

Year	Value in Million US$
2001-02	8.33
2002-03	8.75
2003-04	19.29
2004-05	22.12

It is evident from the above table that India's engineering export to New Zealand during the last 3 years has been increasing in a well-brought-up proportion. It is evident that India's engineering export to New Zealand during 2004-05 had shown in increase of 15 per cent over the performance during the year 2003-04.
