Chairman's Pen

Diplomatic relations between India and Europe date back to the early 1960s. The two countries have signed a cooperation agreement in 1994 and their relationship has been upgraded to strategic partnership at the India-EU summit in Hague held in 2004.

EU has remained India's largest trading partner. Bilateral trade between EU and India was valued around USD 75.8 Billion during the FY 2014-15. EU is also one of the largest sources of FDI for India. The total FDI flows from EU to India stood at Euro 14.19 billion in 2011. India's investment in the EU region in 2011 stood at Euro 2 billion. UK is the leading investor in India followed by Germany, Italy, France and Sweden.

Keeping in view the strategic importance of both EU and India to each other, EU and India launched an FTA negotiation in 2007. The negotiations are ongoing and substantial progress has been made so far. With various multilateral agreements being negotiated around the world, this FTA remains very important for India to maintain its traditional export markets. In the first volume of the Europe newsletter, we keep our focus to EU and examine India's current position in terms of the FTA in the wake of the different multilateral agreements. The subsequent issues will have a separate chapter on India's relation with the non-EU countries in Europe.

I hope that this newsletter will be insightful for our readers and I hope they enjoy reading it.

Indian Government Reviews FTA Strategy at the Wake of TPP and TTIP

In the wake of multilateral agreements such as Trans Pacific partnership (TPP) and Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership (TTIP), the government of India is in the process of reviewing its free trade agreements (FTAs). As per reports, the present government is keen to move towards a more liberal regime on routing of third-country goods while negotiating its FTAs, especially in case of RECP.

FTAs have become crucial for India as its biggest export destinations such as Europe and US are showing no signs of movement in WTO. Moreover, both EU and US are negotiating multilateral deals. For example, EU is negotiating TTIP with US and an FTA with ASEAN and MERCOSUR. US on its part is negotiating TPP with selected South American nations and Asian countries. Experts are of the opinion that such multilateral agreements will impose higher non-tariff barriers in the forms of stricter Sanitary and Phyto-sanitary measures (SPS) and Technical barriers to Trade (TBT). Such measures may have distorting impact on India's exports to EU and US.

In order to counter this problem, India needs to successfully negotiate its FTA with EU, Australia and RECP. RCEP becomes important since atleast six RECP members are also part of the TPP.

Rules of Origin (ROO) are the key determinant of India's negotiations with Australia and RECP. Till now, India has insisted on a system which ensures at least 30-35% of the value addition takes place in the country with which it has signed the deal. However, the government's stance to review all its existing and negotiating FTAs comes at a time when experts are giving importance to an easier ROO for a successful negotiation in RCEP and India is also under pressure from its RCEP partners to change the rules in favour of lower value addition.

India is planning to successfully negotiate trade agreements including RCEP and the one with Australia in the East, EU and Peru on the West. RCEP is also important since it will be one of the largest trade blocs one successfully negotiated. Hence it needs to be seen how India can move forward in these negotiations and protect itself from adverse impacts of TPP and TTIP.

SIAM says India-EU FTA against 'Make in India'

The proposed India-European Union (EU) trade liberalisation pact will not benefit domestic automobile firms and runs counter to the 'Make in India' campaign, the Society of Indian Automobile (SIAM) has said. India should keep the labour-intensive sector out of the purview of the free trade agreements (FTAs) particularly the proposed pact with the 28-nation EU bloc, SIAm's white paper states.

The consequences of TTIP on the European and Global scenario

Geopolitical balances are in constant evolution. The emergence of China has pushed the US to reinforce the European side with TTIP: we have been hearing this word for two years and, as time goes on, negotiations get collected, and the attention increases, we are getting more familiar with it.
