About the Exhibition

Formerly known as EGYPES (Egypt International Energy Conference and Exhibition), the Egypt Energy Show has emerged as an important international platform for the global energy industry, bringing together governments, policymakers, international oil companies, national oil companies, investors, EPC contractors, technology providers and industry leaders.

Supported by Egypt's Ministry of Petroleum and Mineral Resources and held under the patronage of the President of the Arab Republic of Egypt, the 2027 edition is expected to attract around 60,000 attendees, 600 exhibiting companies and participants from 120 countries, with 15 country pavilions.

The exhibition will cover the entire energy value chain, including upstream, midstream and downstream oil and gas, LNG, power generation, electricity transmission and distribution, renewable energy, hydrogen, energy storage, digitalisation and emerging energy technologies.
